Abstract of JP5274275

PURPOSE: To simplify generation and maintenance of a part related to license servers in an application by unifying an interface for license servers when viewed from applications. CONSTITUTION: A licensed application program 202 which uses a service exists in a licensed application 120. When receiving a license request from this licensed application program 202, an operating system discriminates which one of plural license servers is used. The license request is converted to such format that one of plural license servers can accept it, and the converted license request is sent to one of plural license servers. When a response from one of plural license servers is received, this response is sent to the licensed application program 202.
